

Forced Marriage.
I said no. If I can do it so can you.

Arranged marriages are a part of everyday life in Scotland for many communities. But being forced to marry is wrong.

Every human being has the right to choose their own partner. And Scottish law now supports that right.

You can take out a Forced Marriage Protection Order to legally prevent anybody from forcing you to marry against your will.

So if the threat or the reality of forced marriage is causing you or somebody you know either emotional or physical distress, help is at hand.

This is a big step but please don't be afraid. It's your first step on the road to a happier future. For advice, support and protection, call 0800 027 1234 in complete confidence or visit yourrightscotland.org

